BAY REGION IS GRIPPED BY STRIKES

WORST SERIES OF WALKOUTS IN CITIES' HISTORY PREVAILS; 55,000 MEN ARE NOW IDLE IN SHIPYARD STRIKE ALONE.

The entire bay region is passing through one of the most serious labor convulsions in its history this week. All shipyards are tied up, street car service in Oakland and Berkeley is badly crippled, loading and unloading of ships on San Francisco's water front is progressing haltingly as union stevedores are on strike, while traffic by Sacramento river boat is at a standstill for the same reason. Some disturbances have taken place among the stevedores, but in the main the strikes are being quietly conducted.

In this city chief interest attaches to the shipyards strike because of the location here of the Schaw-Batcher yards where about 3000 men are employed. At this plant eight hulls are on the ways and three more in the water. The yard, usually a hive of industry, is now as quiet as a country churchyard. The superintendent's office made the statement to The Enterprise this morning that there were no new developments, that nothing was known as to when a settlement of the disputed points might be reached. In the different shipyards of the bay region eighty-eight ships were on the ways or in the water unfinished when work ceased. It is reported that 55,000 shipyard workers are idle. The chief point the shipyard workers are striking for is an increase of 8 cents an hour in wages. The employers have declared they will not give this increase, at least until after the industrial conference called in Washington for next Monday by President Wilson. That more drastic demands may be made by the shipyard men is indicated by a statement by W. H. Kleinhammer, vice-president of the Bay Cities' Metal Trades Council, that a demand for one dollar an hour wage was being contemplated.

CIVIL SUIT FROM BRIGHTON IS HEARD IN LOCAL COURT

A civil suit in which Jack Mori of Brighton Beach was the plaintiff and P. Sanguinetti and Luigi Culato of Brighton Beach co-defendants, was heard in the local justice court Monday by Justice Johnson of Daly City. J. W. Coleberd was attorney for the plaintiff and Albert Picard for the defendants. Mori is suing for $252.15, which he alleges is due him "for goods sold, money loaned, and premises rented" the defendants. They filed a counter suit for $299.99 "for goods sold and delivered and for money laid out" for the plaintiff. The hearing was a continuance, the first hearing having been in Daly City August 6th. Justice Johnson took the matter under advisement.

SHIP HOTEL HAS NARROW ESCAPE

Fire Breaks Out in Local Hostelry at Early Hour in Morning; Started in Storeroom.

What narrowly escaped being a serious fire occurred at the Ship Hotel at 5 o'clock Thursday morning. Owing to the telephone at the hotel being temporarily out of order, no alarm could be rung in from the hotel and the fire department was not notified until a man from the hotel had run to the Metropolitan Hotel uptown from which the alarm was sounded. The department was soon on the ground and within a short time had the blaze out.

Just how the fire started is a mystery. From all indications it originated in a small storage room near the office and under a stair. The discovery of oil-soaked rags in the debris of the fire lends color to a theory of incendiaryism. The first intimation of the fire the occupants of the hotel had was when smoke began filling the house. The seat of the blaze was located with considerable difficulty. From the volume of smoke when first discovered it would appear that the blaze had been smoldering for some time. When the department arrived it was necessary for the men to tie handkerchiefs over their mouths in order to get into the storeroom.

The damage was chiefly to stored linen and clothing, although the interior of the storeroom was damaged to the extent of about $100.

HELD ON SERIOUS CHARGE.

Frank Willion, a Greek living in this city, was given a preliminary hearing in City Recorder J. J. Dowd's court Wednesday morning, the charge being a statutory offense against an 11-year-old boy of South San Francisco. He was held for trial in the superior court with bonds at $1000, in default of which he was taken to the county jail. Willion was arrested last Saturday, since which time he has been in jail in default of $500 bail. Judge Dowd raised the bail to $1000. District Attorney Swart conducted the prosecution.

MOOSE MASKED BALL AND CARNIVAL WAS GREAT SUCCESS

The masked ball and carnival given by the local lodge of Moose last Saturday night was a great success. A great number of merrymakers from all over the county attended, both dance floors at Fraternal Hall being crowded.

MAKING A SEA OF PAINTS DAILY

ENTERPRISE MAN TAKES A TRIP THROUGH THE GREAT PLANT OF W. P. FULLER & CO. AND SEES PAINTS, VARNISHES, ETC., MADE LITTLE JOURNEYS THROUGH THE INDUSTRIAL PLANTS OF SOUTH SAN FRANCISCO, THE HOME OF MANUFACTURING INTERESTS.

Wherever paint is used in the civilized world the name of W. P. Fuller & Co. is known. But paint is not the only product of this company at its great plant in South San Francisco. White lead, varnishes, shellac, lubricating oils and greases are also made at the local factory or rather group of factories and shipped to far corners of the earth.

Established Here in 1898

Fuller & Co. established their local plant in 1898. Since that time the group of factories has doubled in capacity. At the present time they employ 350 men and women. The plant now covers seventeen and a half acres and an average day's shipment of paints, lead, varnishes, oils, etc., reaches 200 tons. It has its own wharf where its own barges load and carry the manufactured articles to San Francisco. This besides several cars a day that go by rail.

Making White Lead

White lead, which, according to Superintendent John Cox of the Fuller plant, is the basis of the paint industry, is a product older than the Christian era. It is mentioned first by a Roman historian in 300 B. C. In the fifteenth century the Dutch discovered the process for converting pig lead into the common white lead of commerce. And their process is practically the same as that still employed.

The lead arrives at the paint works in "pigs" or bars weighing 100 pounds each. These are melted at a temperature of 750 degrees F. The molten lead flows into small, flat, round molds about the size of a dinner plate. In each mold it hardens into a shell some eight inches in diameter, and about a quarter of an inch thick and pierced in several places. These are called buckles and are made in this form that the acid used in the next step may act on the lead readily.

The buckles are placed, eight or ten

SECRETARY CHARGED WITH EMPEZZLEMENT

Warrant Issued for E. C. Page, Charge Being Appropriation of Funds of Panama-Pacific Lodge.

Justice W. J. Smith issued a warrant Wednesday morning for the arrest of E. C. Page of this city, the charge, sworn to by L. H. Hardy, being embezzlement. Page is accused of appropriating $400 belonging to Panama-Pacific Exposition Lodge No. 5, Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel, and Tin Workers.

For some time Page has been secretary of the lodge and, it now transpires, has made a practice of depositing all lodge funds that came into his possession in the bank in his own name. Hardy swore to the complaint as a trustee of the lodge. Although the sum named in the complaint is $400, it is believed that the actual sum Page is short in his accounts is about $1000. He was not under bonds as secretary. His defalcation was discovered Tuesday, when a check for $400 which he gave to the treasurer of the lodge was returned by the bank. Suspicion had previously been aroused by his absence from lodge meeting last Saturday night. Armed with the warrant officers made a search of Page's quarters in a local rooming house, and discovered that he had disappeared and all his effects with him. So far as known he was last seen in this city last Friday.

Page has lived in South San Francisco for several years. He was brought into unenviable prominence about a month ago by a suit brought against him by a San Francisco nurse for $160 alleged due her for professional services rendered during an attack of smallpox which Page suffered early in July. The case was decided against Page, and the attorneys for the plaintiff attached $140 which he had in the bank at that time. It is believed now that this was what remained of all the Panama-Pacific lodge's money that had come into Page's possession.

LAND COMPANY BUILDING FIVE NEW BUNGALOWS

R. C. Stickle, the local contractor, is building five bungalows for the Land Company. Three are in High School Park and two on Miller avenue. All are strictly modern, with hardwood floors and late ideas in built-in features.

Production creates profits, of course. But who gets them? We don't.

ALL NOW READY FOR OPENING Y. M. C. A.

Excellent Program Arranged for This Evening; Refreshments to Be Served; All Free.

Friday night of this week marks the formal opening of the Y. M. C. A. rooms in Metropolitan Hall in this city. Within the last few days the hall has been thoroughly cleaned, furniture and equipment have been installed and the place fitted for social and recreational rooms and for class rooms for the carrying on of the Y. M. C. A. work. The night classes in English and citizenship conducted in this city under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. are now being held in the new quarters. Preparations have been made for a high-class entertainment at the rooms Friday night. Several local artists will contribute to the program and the services of several professionals from San Francisco have been secured. The entire evening's entertainment, including program and refreshments of punch to be served the gathering afterward, will be free. It is expected there will be a large attendance.

J. O. Snyder will act as chairman of the evening and the program will be as follows:

Prayer of dedication, Rev. Daniel Stevens; community sing, led by Robert Clark, Metropolitan Y. M. C. A. song leader; address, Mayor G. W. Holston; piano solo, Miss Viola Mae Hein; address, Judge E. E. Cunningham; instrumental selection, California Trio (Miss Flora Hubbard, piano; Miss Laura Cotton, cornet; Miss Cecil Rauhut, violin); address, Richard R. Perkins, general secretary San Francisco Y. M. C. A.; vocal solo, Miss Rue R. Clifford; announcements, David L. Smith, secretary South San Francisco Branch Y. M. C. A.; cornet solo, Miss Laura Cotton of the California Trio.

LOCAL WOMAN'S CLUB ELECTS NEW OFFICERS

The Woman's Club held the last business meeting of the present club year Thursday, October 2d, at the home of the president, Mrs. Marianne Martin. There was a large attendance and several matters of importance came up for discussion. The nominating committee, consisting of Mrs. Katie Maynard, Mrs. Bertie Hynding and Mrs. Caroline Winterhalter, submitted the following names for officers for the ensuing year:

President, Mrs. Lillian Walker; vice-president, Mrs. Bertie Hynding; treasurer, Miss Margaret Kauffmann; secretary, Mrs. Leora Nyland. A separate unanimous ballot was cast for each officer.

Further plans for the annual club breakfast and founders' day celebration were made. This event is for club members only and is anticipated with a great deal of pleasure. Among the guests this year are various federation officers. The club feels particularly fortunate in having Mrs. Adella Schloss, president of the California Federation of Women's Clubs, present.

The club adjourned to meet Thursday, October 16th, at noon in the Guild Hall for the annual breakfast.

The club expects to send a delegation to the garden fete to be held by the San Mateo Woman's Club October 11th at the Peninsula Hotel.

MAKING PAINTS.

at a time, in small earthenware pots and these pots, each with a pint of a weak solution of vinegar or acetic acid poured into it, are stored in enormous bins or "stacks" packed in dampened tanbark. The bark is spread on the floor, then comes a layer of the pots, then a double layer of boards, then another layer of bark and another layer of pots, until the whole pile contains ten layers of bark, pots, and boards. Then the sides of the stack are tightly boarded up and the whole is allowed to stand for 100 days. During this time wonderful chemical changes take place that convert the gray, metallic lead into a white, brittle substance—basic carbonate of lead or white lead.

Treating the Lead.

Although the converting of lead into white lead started with a process that has been in use for hundreds of years, old-fashioned methods cease with this first step. From this point on up-to-date methods and the most modern machine are used in the big Fuller plant.

The white substance taken from the stacks is passed through pulverizing machines which are carefully enclosed that all dust, which is more or less poisonous, is kept in. From these it passes to machines that grind it still finer and all particles of tanbark, dirt or uncorroded lead are removed with screens and by a patented vacuum process. Then the new finely ground lead is run into water and passes to big burrstone grinding mills over five feet in diameter. It is ground still finer, washed, reground, reworked, and at last strained through the finest of silk, a fabric so fine that its meshes number 40,000 to the square inch. After standing over night in settling tanks the finely ground lead, now called "pulp lead," settles to the bottom of the tanks and the water is pumped out. Beneath the pulp tanks is a weighing box into which 2800 pounds of pulp lead, the equivalent of one ton of dry lead, is run, after which it is conveyed into tanks where it is mixed with an exactly measured portion of raw linseed oil. This is done on the fourth floor of the big plant. During this mixing lead and oil sink to the bottom of the tanks and all remaining water rises to the top and is removed. The mixture is the white lead of commerce, a lead that is as finely ground as the finest flour, as smooth as the silk it passes through in its last sifting. Much of it is used in the mixed paint department of the plant, the remainder being shipped in steel kegs.

In the "Color Works"

Interesting for many reasons are the "color works" near by. Here the colors for paints are prepared. The big room contains a double row of circular mixers. Every color of the spectrum is there and scores of shades beside. Many of the colorings are mineral substances, others, especially the more brilliant ones, are aniline dyes.

"Before the war our dyes came mostly from Germany," explained H. Ellis, assistant manager of this department of the plant. "Now they are made in the United States and are as good as any that the Germans ever made." Between two huge French burrstones the colors are carefully, thoroughly ground, then mixed with linseed oil.

In another department different grades of paints are made with China clay, silica, or barium sulphate as the pigment instead of white lead. Each of these different grades is intended for a different purpose. The Government and the railroad companies nearly always specify one of these paints in their purchases instead of pure white lead.

Floor and shingle stains are mixed in still another shop. In the shingle stains creosote enters as a wood preservative. These stains are made in big tanks 500 gallons at a time.

Near the "color works" is a department where four big steel rollers weighing 2200 pounds each slowly revolve in circular bins, grinding and mixing whiting and linseed oil. The result is putty.

Paint "Records"

A novel system for keeping records on paint or stains manufactured is used. In a large rack containing scores of narrow slits are thin strips of wood painted or stained from each batch of the coloring matter turned out. On the back of each slip is entered the date the paint was finished as well as its ingredients and other data for future reference. These slips are filed away and preserved. Near these color and paint rooms is a small laboratory where formulas are drawn up and all coloring matter purchased tested.

In a series of rooms in the "color works," painted samples, "color cards," etc., for advertising are made. Everybody has seen the cards and folders with slips of colored paper displaying the varied hues of the paint advertised, also the sheaves of pieces of painted wood arranged for the same purpose. The making of these samples is a department in itself, employing about a dozen girls and several men.

Sealing Varnish Made.

L. W. Cornelison, timekeeper at the Fuller plant and assistant to Superintendent Cox, acted as guide through the part of the works where varnish, floor wax, shellac, etc., are made.

Canaba, a substance that looks like beeswax and comes from Mexico, is the base of the various kinds of floor wax. It is ground fine and mixed with turpentine.

Kauri gum from New Zealand is the base of varnish. It looks much like resin, but is a mineral substance. In the varnish plant sixteen rearing oil and gas fires burn in circular holes below the surface of the floor. Over these iron tanks are wheeled on trucks. The ground kauri gum mixed with oils and other ingredients is cooked in these tanks. After the necessary length of time over the fire the tanks are wheeled into an adjoining room, where great tanks holding turpentine, mineral turpentine, and distillate stand in a row. These liquids are added to the hot mixture according to the finished product wanted.

"Straining" Varnish

To a person who has seen milk run through a cream separator, one of the most novel sights of the varnish plant is the way impurities are removed from varnish. A row of cream separators are used. The impurities rise and flow from the spout where cream comes in the ordinary use of the separator, the clear, purified varnish coming from the milk spout. The old method was to force the varnish through a series of canvases, the modern method being much quicker and more thorough.

In another room are many storage tanks for varnish, each of 2100 gallons capacity, each painted white.

In still another department shellac is made from shellac gum brought from India, mixed with denatured alcohol.

Many Other Factories.

There are many other factories in the great Fuller plant. There is the box factory, for instance, where 600,000 boxes a year are turned out. There is the storage room where the box shooks, mountains of it, is stored ready for use. There are the departments where lubricating oils and greases are made, or those where insecticides are mixed and where the odor of carbolic acid and creosote are prevalent. Whale oil soap, much used in spraying trees, is made here, too, also belt dressings and many other commercial articles. There is the shipping department, too, where one's imagination runs riot as one pictures scenes at the far places where the goods in boxes and kegs are to be sent, for here on reads addresses in Mexico, Brazil, Honolulu, Guatemala, Cape Town, Sydney, etc.

Cafeteria and Laboratory.

Two departments deserving paragraphs to themselves are the cafeteria and laboratory. In the company eating house excellent meals are served for the convenience of the employees. The prices charged are remarkably low in this day of high costs.

The laboratory is complete in its appointments and serves also as a first aid hospital. It is in charge of W. R. Welty of this city and contains all the mysterious apparatus and appliances usually found in such places, all mystifying to the lay mind but all tremendously important in the testing of ingredients, the making of formulas, etc.

Everything considered it is a big institution, the W. P. Fuller plant, an institution thoroughly up to date, modern in its equipment and methods, deservedly successful in its business achievements.

MORE COMMUNITY CHAIRMEN FOR ROOSEVELT MEMORIAL

E. E. Cunningham, chairman of the Roosevelt Memorial Association for San Mateo county, has made appointments of chairmen for cities and communities of this county as follows:

Rev. W. A. Brewer, Burlingame.
A. C. Tuchen, Redwood City.
Peter Gouzene, Millbrae.
J. N. Custer, San Bruno.
W. R. Markt, Visitacion.

These appointments are in addition to those announced in The Enterprise of September 19th. Other appointments will be announced later.

Serbia wants American school teachers. The minister of public education has asked the American Red Cross to supply teachers as instructors in English, which is to be introduced into Serbian schools.

Not Ashamed of His Religion.

The woolly-headed Uncle Rasmus was accused of disturbing the peace. Officer Mort Randolph explained it as follows:

"Your honor, this man was running up and down Mill River road, waving his arms and yelling at the top of his voice, and otherwise raising the mischief, at 1:30 o'clock in the morning. The people of that district complained, and they had a perfect right to."

The judge frowned at Rasmus, who didn't seem to be particularly worried. "What do you mean by such unbecoming conduct?" his honor demanded.

"Religion, jedge," was the response. "Religion! Are you a Holy Roller, or something like that? I have religion, Rasmus, but I don't get up at midnight and tell everybody about it."

"Dat's des de diffunce, jedge, I ain't ershamed ob mine."—Case and Comment.

CHAPTER VI.

The Vendetta.

"You, Gunga!" Wallen whispered hoarsely. "You—you did this. For God's sake, what does it mean? How did you come here? Where did you come from?"

"Sahib, there is no time to talk," the other answered gravely. "There is much danger. Come quickly. We will go back to your ship."

"Sahib, There is No Time for Talk."

"You know about that—the ship?"

mumbled Wallen. "How—"

"Sahib," almost piteously, "come."

There followed for Wallen a space of time that he could neither estimate in duration nor of whose events in the interval he could form any concrete whole. There were dark streets and darker byways, and always before him, wraithlike in his loose white garb, the turbaned figure of the East Indian; and then a boat from some dark corner of a jetty and they were in it, and Gunga was rowing.

His mind had been in chaos; picturing again and again the fearsome sight in the glow of that burning match; trying to span the ten years since he had last seen this man; striving futilely but with a sort of maddening, irresponsible insistence, to grapple with this and that question that came and went in lightning succession; and always reverting to that black room, the sputtering match, and Drink-House Sam upon the bed again.

And now they were far out in the harbor and the water was very still, and under the moonlight it was very black, and a little ahead he could see the Monleigh; and then Gunga lay upon his oars and spoke.

"Sahib, is it true what they say—that the master is dead?"

The question in its abruptness, its significance, came like a physical shock to Wallen; but, too, it roused him, cleared his brain of its chaotic obsession, and brought him back, alert and tense, to actualities and his immediate surroundings.

"It is true," he answered slowly. "They say aboard that it was an accident; that father accidentally shot himself while he was cleaning an automatic pistol."

Gunga's face was in the moonlight, and Wallen stared at it now and could not take his eyes away.

A whiteness came upon the swarthy features, the lips quivered tremulously like a child's; and then it seemed to be another face, distorted, an inhuman passion in the twitching muscles, the lips parted and tight-drawn across the gums, showing the teeth as a beast might show them as it crouches to spring. And then this, too, was gone, for the head was bowed over the oars, and Wallen could no longer see.

Presently Gunga looked up, but now his face was impassive.

"It is fate, sahib," he said in a low, strange way. "Allah is great. I have loved the master many years, and now I am the servant of his son. Sahib, will you pay blood with blood?"

"You mean," said Wallen, his own voice low, "that you, too, know it was not an accident—that it was murder? And that Drink-House Sam, though he was miles away, had a hand in it, and that was why you killed him?"

"Sahib," said Gunga softly, "I did not kill the man; I was too late!"

"You didn't kill him!" Wallen cried. "Then who—?" He leaned forward and gripped the other's wrist fiercely.

"Gunga, the time has come for me to know. Why was my father murdered, and by whom? Why did he live that strange life in that old gray, stone house? Why did Drink-House Sam set a crew of Chinese murderers loose upon me? And this"—he held out the diagram of the human hand with its missing fingers—"what does this signify, and why was it slipped under the door of my cabin last night?"

A yell of applause greeted the act. But the blow never reached its mark—Wallen had dealt too long and too intimately with the forecandle not to recognize the breed around him that was the forecandle's curse and the curse of the better men who honored it. With a quick sidestep he evaded the blow, whipped his left in a lightning drive to the other's chin, and, as the man staggered backward into the crowd Wallen leaped for the rear door behind him.

He reached it, but not before they were upon him like a pack of wolves, snarling at him, tearing at him, their breaths in his face, pounding at him, trying to trip him up, to throw him to the floor.

The place was now in pandemonium. Again and again Wallen's clubbed revolver rose and fell, again and again his fist shot in and out and still he kept his feet; but he could not free himself long enough to get the door open—and then something seemed to lend him added passion, added strength.

The face of Drink-House Sam! It was just out of reach—just out of reach.

He flung two men from him and lunged forward. If he could only mark that face! A bellow of fright from Marle greeted the savage onslaught—and Wallen's fist had smashed straight between the red little blinking eyes. The suddenness of the attack brought an instant's pause—and in that instant he had reached the door and this time wrenched it open.

And then Wallen laughed, not pleasantly, and his revolver, not clubbed now, swept the crowd.

"I'll be out here somewhere in the darkness," he told them grimly as he backed away, "and the first man that steps across the threshold I'll drop the way I'd drop a mad dog!"

They stared at him, dogged, sullen, but without a word—until they could no longer see him—and then they answered him with catcalls, hoots, profanity and brave defiance. But no man crossed the threshold.

He moved backward cautiously, making no sound, edging always in a side-wise direction—and suddenly, to his own surprise and relief, where he had expected to encounter a fence or some other obstruction, found instead that the rear of Drink-House Sam's gave evidently onto only vacant ground, for he had now come out onto what was either a street or a lane.

But while his escape was now assured, Wallen was in no happy frame of mind. He had yet to square accounts with Drink-House Sam. He had accomplished not only no part of the purpose for which he had come, but had, worse still, probably put the man thoroughly on his guard. But the night was still young and Drink-House Sam was still there!

He was not through with Drink-House Sam yet; the ill luck of his first attempt changed matters not at all; he would never be through with Drink-House Sam until—that murderous sweep of passion was on him again—until he had not only forced the secret out of the other but had paid the score between them as well! And this time he would see to it that the privacy of their interview was of his own making.

Wallen made a wide circuit of the place, which, owing to his ignorance of the neighborhood, in which he lost himself several times, consumed fully half an hour.

But at the expiration of that time he was stealing along the opposite side of the street in front of Drink-House Sam's again; and, grateful now for the dinginess of the surroundings and the absence of lights, slipped into a narrow alleyway, or more properly a space some three feet wide between two buildings facing Drink-House Sam's, and lay down upon the ground.

By and by Drink-House Sam would go to bed, by and by that light in the barroom would go out, by and by the hangers-on would be dispersed, and by and by somewhere in that house he would get Drink-House Sam alone.

Wallen lay there, his eyes on the barroom door across the street. Occasionally someone straggled in, occasionally someone straggled out; but it was many hours, while he grew stiff and cramped, before the place began to empty out—before Drink-House Sam himself at the doorway was ejecting, with some force and more profanity, what appeared to be the last of his guests.

And then the light in the barroom was extinguished.

It was very late; but precisely what time it was Wallen did not know, only that he had lain there for an interminable space. Well, he had waited so long he could afford to wait still another hour—until Drink-House Sam and whoever else was in the place had got to bed and got to sleep. This time he would leave nothing to chance.

A light appeared suddenly in the end room on the veranda over the barroom—and Wallen's lips parted in a twisted smile. Luck again! That was Drink-House Sam's room! The man, silhouetted against the light, was opening the veranda door, for air probably. The room obviously then had two doors, for Marle had entered it from the interior of the house. Wallen smiled again. He would enter from the veranda. Luck was coming now in greater measure than he had dared to hope.

The light in the room went out.

The minutes passed, a quarter of an hour, a half, three-quarters—and then Wallen sat up, unlaced his boots and, tying them together with their strings, slung them around his neck.

Like a shadow, a little blacker than the surrounding blackness, he was across the street, and quickly, agilely, silently, was swarming up one of the veranda posts.

He paused as he reached the rail to listen—the rail was old and it had creaked a little, not loudly, but—who knew!—it might have been heard.

There was not a sound.

He swung over onto the veranda and moved cautiously forward. In a moment he was at Marle's door. Again he listened. Nothing—not a sound! Only darkness within, pitch blackness—and he could see nothing.

His face was set now, his jaws hard-clamped. His plan was simple—to choke this human devil into submission before the other could make a sound, to get his fingers first of all upon the ruffian's throat.

He was stealing into the room, feeling before him. He touched the foot of the bed and guided himself along the side of it.

Stealthily, inch by inch, he crept toward the head of the bed, reached it, his hands shot forward, lunging swiftly with the body weight behind them, closed on the man's throat—and the next instant he was staggering backward, a low cry of horror on his lips. His hands were wet—wet with warm blood!

He could not see, but he knew it was blood. Unnerved, shaken to the soul, a panic upon him, he stood there for a moment, his mind in riot. Then, fighting desperately for self-control, he took a match from his pocket and lighted it. He closed his eyes on the sight.

Some one had done the horrible work only too well—the man's throat was only a gaping wound.

The match in Wallen's fingers still burned on, forgotten. He must get out of here. Drink-House Sam's mouth was closed forever.

He could have laughed aloud, hysterically, at the ghastly irony of that. He must get away unseen before—what was that?

There was some one else in the room. Some one moved. The match, in its dying flame, spurted up. A tall, gaunt form loomed before him. That face!

Where had he seen that face?

The match dropped from his fingers. That face! It seemed to be associated with dreams—of long ago. And then a voice spoke:

"Sahib, come quickly."

And then he knew.

It was Gunga.

Managing Editor

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 3, 1919.

WE RISE TO REMARK.

With all due consideration for the conservatism which always characterizes the editorial utterances in this family newspaper, the editor rises to remark that there never were finer babies born in California than the twins which arrived in South San Francisco Wednesday night and which are already trying to call him "daddy"! And by ginger! he is prepared to defend that statment against all comers. They are boy and girl; yes, sir!

OUR ADVERTISERS.

The business world has long since come to recognize this fact: the firms in any city that advertise steadily and consistently are the most responsible and dependable business houses in that town. They invite public inspection of their stores and business methods. They are working for a reputation for upright dealing and have goods they are proud to call public attention to. Nine time out of ten they are the solid citizens of the town, the backbone of the community. They are the business houses that are to be found at the same stand year after year and are in a class apart from those "fly by night" concerns that are here today and gone tomorrow, have never been in any one place long enough to build up a good reputation, and do not advertise because they do not care to have the public examine their goods or their business methods too closely.

Look over the advertisements in The Enterprise. This paper believes its advertisers are the pick of the merchants of South San Francisco and urges all its friends to trade with them. It believes you will be well treated if you do. These firms handle goods they are not ashamed of at prices they do not hesitate to make public. When in need of anything look over the advertising columns of this paper and NEVER SPEND A DOLLAR OUTSIDE SOUTH SAN FRANCISCO UNLESS YOU CANNOT SUPPLY YOUR WANTS IN THIS CITY.

"THE TRUTH SHALL MAKE YOU FREE."

A recently discharged soldier went into civilian life—and then decided to return to the army. His reason was that he found it easier to talk the language.

He didn't say what language, but after a few questions his position became plain. In the army they are less polite than we are in civil life, but they know each other better. In civil life we are civil. We rarely say what we really mean. If we are invited anywhere, and we don't want to go, we don't say no; we merely have a previous engagement. If we are asked whether we like something that the other fellow likes, we say "yes," even though it gives us a pain in the rhomboidal gland.

We profess personal liking—even enthusiastic affection—for people to whom we want to sell something. If we are made the recipient of honey-flavored overtures, we feel a sinister suspicion that we have been picked as prospects.

It seems unfortunate that any one should have to go into the army to escape from this kind of thing. For many people it is an excellent thing to be in the army, but it is sad that there should be no other environment—except, perhaps, the navy—where things are called by their real names. Sincerity in these two branches of public service is natural; the members don't have to sell anything to make a living. But a fairly good alternative would be found in the development of a corresponding sincerity in civil life.

OFFICIAL VISITING.

In a spirit intended for official cordiality, the British government sends the Prince of Wales to the United States. This fact is worrying certain precisions in international etiquette over here.

They contend that the British are sending the wrong representative. As Great Britain claims to be a democracy, it is her duty to send us some one who represents the democratic idea. And this, they hold, a prince can hardly do. If he doesn't represent monarchy, what does he represent?

They even complain that, to a republic like ours, any one with a royal title is "persona non grata" as an official representative. A kingdom or archduchy might recognize him, but for us to do so is almost a surrender of principle.

Well, in theory this is very sound reasoning. The Prince of Wales is less qualified to represent the bulk of the British people than any one whom they could have selected. Except, perhaps, King George. A king's son is not quite so completely cut off from the realities of national life as his royal father. But he comes fairly close to it. If we want a typical representative of the British people, we would, perhaps, prefer Lloyd George.

And we should show sound sense in demanding it; but Lloyd would probably stay at home. He is needed in England just now, and the Prince isn't. The Prince never was, and probably never will be. He is one of the least necessary persons, as an individual, in the British empire, though, no doubt, a thoroughly companionable, unaffected, healthy minded young man. But Great Britain is passing through acutely critical times, and Lloyd George is needed there every minute of every day. So is every other man who has the quality of leadership, and a conscience to regulate it.

When one nation pays a complimentary visit to another, it generally uses as a representative some one who is merely a symbol. It is economy to do so. And he is received by a symbol representing the visited nation—the recipient of the compliment. And so the courtesies are exchanged. The symbolical visitant never enters the humbler dwellings of the people visited, and sees next to nothing of their national life; therefore it hardly matters who he is. President Wilson saw nothing of the French and British when he was in Europe, although he did some work there. And the compliments have been passed.

As far as official courtesies go, a couple of postal cards would do it just as well.

There is one overpowering reason why country editors never go on strike. The "devil" might seize the office and get out a better sheet.

PRACTICAL RECIPES

Under this heading The Enterprise will publish, from week to week, a series of excellent recipes written especially for this paper by a woman who has had a university training in domestic science and a wide experience in cooking in her own home. Every recipe has been thoroughly tested and will be found economical and palatable.

Tamale Pie

- 3 pounds lean beef.
1. Cook meat with about 1½ quarts of water to which the following seasonings have been added: Onion, pepper, salt, chili powder.
 2. Shred the meat.
 3. Thicken the stock in which meat was cooked with cornmeal to consistency of cornmeal mush and cook 3 hours.
 4. Make tomato sauce, using: 1 can tomatoes, onion, salt, chili powder, flour to thicken like gravy. Simmer 20 minutes and strain.
 5. Arrange in baking dish as follows:
 - A layer of the mush.
 - A layer of the shredded meat mixed with the tomato sauce.
 - If desired, dot with raisins, slices of hard-boiled eggs and olives.
 6. When ready to use, heat in oven. This is a very nourishing dish, taking the place of both potatoes and meat. A light, crisp salad such as lettuce and French dressing should be served with it.

Light Salads

1. Lettuce and Fruit Salad. Shred lettuce, add to it a little fruit such as a few slices of oranges, a few skinned and seeded grapes, cherries, slices of peaches, etc., and serve with French dressing.
2. Pear and Cheese Salad. Use crisp, tender lettuce. On each serving place a half a pear, either fresh or canned. Shape soft cheese to represent a tiny carrot and put a little spring of parsley in the top. Place on the lettuce. Serve with mayonnaise.
3. Lemon or orange gelatine cut into squares and placed on lettuce leaves make a light and appetizing salad. Or fruit or cucumber and pineapple may be sliced and molded with the gelatine, in which case a little more gelatine needs to be used.

MISS FERN MAHONEY BECOMES WIFE OF FRED MYLES SATURDAY

A wedding of more than ordinary interest to residents of South San Francisco took place last Saturday afternoon when Miss Fern Mahoney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Mahoney of this city, became the wife of Fred Myles, son of James C. Myles of Burlingame, formerly of this city. The ceremony was performed at the First Methodist Church in San Francisco, the Rev. Carl L. Bent officiating. Miss Viola Hein of South San Francisco acted as bridesmaid, Reginald Myles, brother of the bridegroom, as best man.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Myles are very well known in this city. Mr. Myles has lived in this vicinity for about seven years, except for the time put in in his country's service. In July he returned from two years overseas. He is now employed at the Pacific Coast Steel Company's local plant. Practically every resident of South San Francisco knows Mrs. Myles as the smiling young lady who presides at the receiving window in the South San Francisco Water Company's office. She has lived in this city for twelve years.

Mr. and Mrs. Myles are making their home on Walnut avenue, this city.

French maid (to inquiring friend)—Oui, madame is ill, but ze doctaire haf pronounce it something very trifling, very small.

Friend—Oh, I am so relieved, for I was really anxious about her. What does the doctor say the trouble is?

French maid—Let me think it was something leetle. Ah, I haf it now. Ze doctaire say zat madame has ze smallpox.

To Remove Ink Stains.

Ink can be taken from white goods with tomatoes if applied freely. Cold milk is good when the stains are fresh, changing the milk as often as necessary. Fresh butter is even a better solvent.

If very obstinate and the material will stand hot water, the stain should be covered with melted tallow, then washed in the usual way.

Oxalic acid will remove any very obstinate stains, but can be used only on white goods, as it will destroy the color. The crystals are dissolved in boiling water and the liquid is applied to the stain. A thorough rinsing in clear water afterward is imperative.

Another Method.

In dyeing and cleaning shops ether is used almost exclusively for removing ink from fabrics. It is a powerful cleansing agent, but will destroy materials unless they are well rinsed. Ether will remove perspiration stains, but should be mixed with ammonia and water. One-fourth ether, one-fourth ammonia and one-half water is a good mixture. Rinse and place in the sun.

A bottle of cologne is a most useful article, for it will take away smears if rubbed on as soon as they appear. It can be used alike on white or colored fabrics, cotton or woolen, without the slightest injury.

Ice cream makes a very bad stain because it has both grease and sugar in its make-up. To remove stains of it from silk, sponge the stained parts with gasoline or chloroform, placing a pad of absorbent cotton or blotting paper under the spots. When dry, sponge with tepid water and a good soap, and then rub with a flannel cloth until dry. This work must be done away from the fire or artificial light. Use plain strong coffee to remove the stains of ice cream or milk from black clothing. Dip a cloth in the coffee and rub it over the spot. If the coffee is applied as soon as the stain has been made, so much the better.

Julia Bottomley

Umbrellas Are Fancy.

The umbrella manufacturers have found a welcome demand in the business supplied by fancy makes. The colored silks and matched handles and tips have proved quite popular with buyers, who not only placed appreciative orders for such goods when they bought but have put in a good duplicate business. The manufacturers have so fashioned their product now that they have made umbrellas a dress accessory, and this has done more than anything else, it is said, to encourage sales.

Chenille Embroidery.

Embroidery in chenille in matching tone is used on black and beige costumes, and the chenille matches the material. Sometimes on black satin or taffeta frocks the embroideries take their pattern from lace, Alencon or Chantilly. English embroidery on taffeta is a new trimming detail this season. This is especially noted on garden frocks.

Uses for Ribbon.

For dress trimming purposes, girdles, fringes, tassels and spangles are in favor. Wide plain ribbons are in demand for sashes.

CLUB RECEIVES LETTERS.

The Welfare Club of the Western Meat Company has received the following letters:

Employees Welfare Club, South San Francisco—Gentlemen: I wish to tender to you my heartfelt thanks for the substantial financial assistance you recently gave my family.

South San Francisco can well be proud of such an organization. May God bless you.

Yours very gratefully,
GEORGE PORTA.

Western Meat Company Employees—Gentlemen: I thank you very much from the bottom of my heart for your kind donations and extended sympathies toward me in my darkest hour of sorrow.

Yours very respectfully,
MRS. DELEMOS.

A Skeptical Jury.

An Idaho lawyer tells of a case tried in that state some years ago, on which occasion the judge, an easterner, who desired to display his learning, instructed the jury very fully, laying down the law with the utmost authority. But the jurors, after deliberating some hours, found themselves unable to agree. Finally, the foreman asked for additional instructions.

"Judge, here's the trouble," said he. "The jury wants to know if what you told us was really the law, or only just your notion."—Harper's.

PRETTY GIRL WILL OPEN LAND SHOW NEXT SATURDAY

The prettiest maid of California, whose name has been kept a secret by the committee selecting her, will open the California Industries and Land Show at exposition auditorium next Saturday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

The Maid of California, as she shall be known for the period of the California Industries and Land Show, will be dressed in a California costume, even the fabric of which the garment is made will be a product of local looms. Following Miss California, Lieutenant-Governor Young will make the formal presentation of the All-California Industries and Land Show to the public.

The Home Industry League members have regretted the impossibility of having Senator Hiram W. Johnson speak on the League of Peace at the auditorium. His managers requested the league to postpone the Industries and Land Show, but it was impossible.

WELFARE WORKER RESIGNS TO ENTER THE MINISTRY

Max Deweese, who has had charge of the "welfare" work among the employees of the Western Meat Company, resigned his position with the packing plant this week to enter the ministry. Mr. Deweese left this city Wednesday for San Francisco. Wednesday night he was ordained as a minister of the gospel and left Thursday for Fowler, Calif., to assume charge of the Christian church at that place.

The affairs of the Welfare Club at the Western Meat plant will be conducted from now on by the "general welfare committee," consisting of seven employees of the plant.

NOTICE INVITING SEALED PROPOSALS FOR SEWER CONSTRUCTION WORK IN THE CITY OF SOUTH SAN FRANCISCO.

No. 38

Sealed proposals will be received by the Board of Trustees of the City of South San Francisco until 8 o'clock p. m. on Monday the 6th day of October, 1919, for doing the following work in the City of South San Francisco, County of San Mateo, State of California:

The construction of an extension of the Commercial Avenue sewer from Chestnut Avenue to Ashton Avenue.

All material and all work must be in strict compliance with the requirements of the plans and specifications adopted by the Board of Trustees on the 15th day of September, 1919, and now on file in the office of the City Clerk. The successful bidder shall, within ten (10) days after the award, enter into a contract with the City of South San Francisco for the faithful performance of the work to be done under said award.

All proposals must be accompanied with a certified check upon a solvent bank of the State of California, payable to the City of South San Francisco, in an amount not less than ten (10) per cent of the aggregate of the bid, upon the condition that if the proposal be accepted and the contract awarded, and if the bidder shall fail or neglect to execute the contract and give the bonds required, the sum mentioned in said check shall be liquidated damages for such failure and neglect, and shall be forfeited to and paid into the treasury of the City of South San Francisco.

Bidders shall give the unit price for each and all the items of work provided for in the specifications.

The bidder to whom is awarded a contract will be required to execute a bond for the faithful performance of his work in an amount equal to twenty-five (25) per cent of the amount of his undertaking, with at least two (2) responsible sureties in the full amount of the bid each; and will also be required, before entering upon the work, to furnish a good and sufficient bond as required by an act of the Legislature of the State of California, approved March 27, 1917, entitled "An Act to secure the claims of material-men, mechanics, or laborers employed by contractors upon state, municipal or other public work," and will also be required to exhibit to said Board of Trustees a policy of insurance showing that said bidder is insured against loss through accident or negligence, in such a way as to satisfactorily protect said City of South San Francisco under the provisions of the "Workmen's Compensation, Insurance and Safety Act of the State of California."

The contract must be entered into in compliance with and subject to the conditions imposed by Section 653c of the Penal Code of the State of California.

Sealed proposals or bids will be delivered to the City Clerk on or before eight (8) o'clock p. m. on Monday the 6th day of October, 1919.

All sealed proposals or bids will be opened by said Board of Trustees in public session on Monday, the 6th day of October, 1919, at 8 o'clock p. m. in the Council Chamber of said Board.

The Board of Trustees hereby reserves the right to reject any and all bids.

By order of the Board of Trustees of the City of South San Francisco, dated September 15th, 1919.

WILLIAM J. SMITH,
City Clerk.

Rhymes by Machine.

Pray do not deem, respected sirs, that we are turning up our nose at honest journalistic prose. Our editor's a solemn bird who cannot rhyme a single word, and when he sees the stuff he wrote come out as verse, it gets his goat.

Of course you've guessed it! You're so keen! It's manufactured by machine!

So smooth and perfect are her parts, they simply warble when she starts. Such bird-like words as Czecho-Slav, she sets in metre true and suave, and even words that are more tricky, like Przemsyl and Bol-sheviki, she turns to music in her hopper and makes them rhyme. Not one can stop her! Perhaps you think she side-stepped Przemsyl? She rhymes it like a French-bred demoiselle!—From the Mergenthaler Limes O' Type News.

In Bohemia, Americans have to catch the train at 3:30 a. m. in Prague to reach the Red Cross relief distributing stations in near-by towns on time. This information comes from Miss Louise Adams, a Red Cross worker of Brooklyn, who wants weary commuters in America to know what commuting really is.

Under this heading The Enterprise will publish, from time to time, communications from its readers on topics of general interest. This paper assumes no responsibility for these utterances, merely acting as a medium for public expression. In writing for this department be brief, avoid personalities, and confine yourself to subjects that interest your neighbors as well as yourself. Every letter must be signed by the writer's name as evidence of good faith, but these names will not be published where the writers do not wish it.

Editor South San Francisco Enterprise, South San Francisco, Calif.—Dear Sir: At the last meeting of the Chamber of Commerce the writer took up the matter of planting trees and geraniums in the parkway of our streets in South San Francisco, and Ambrose McSweeney was appointed a committee of one with power to select assistants to appear before the board of trustees at their next meeting and urge upon them the necessity of planting trees in our city.

My idea is to have a general tree planting campaign throughout the city, and this might be handled at this time as a memorial to our boys who fought in the world war. Of course, it will require considerable funds to carry this proposition through, and if the trustees are not in position financially to handle the entire scheme I would suggest that eight or ten blocks in the west end of the city be set aside and planted this fall or spring as a demonstration of what can be done. The trees should, of course, be well staked and tied to prevent them from bending and getting whipped to pieces by the wind and a tree warden should be appointed and paid by the city to care for the trees, cultivating and watering them at intervals for about two years.

Won't you please get behind Mr. McSweeney on this proposition and use whatever influence you can to put this campaign across?

Thanking you in advance for your consideration, I am,

Yours very truly,

A. HYNDING.

OLD-TIME RESIDENT OF THIS CITY PASSES AWAY

Mrs. Carolina Hoelscher, for over twenty years a resident of this city, died at the home of her niece, Mrs. Martha James, in Elmhurst, Saturday of last week. The burial took place at Cypress Lawn cemetery Monday. Mrs. Hoelscher was 72 years of age. Heart trouble was the cause of her death. The aged woman had been living alone in her home on Miller avenue until about three weeks ago, when she became ill and was taken to the home of Mrs. James.

THIRD ROLL CALL TO OPEN SUNDAY OCT. 25

Four weeks from Sunday the campaign for the third Red Cross "roll call" opens. The roll call manager in the Pacific division announces a thorough preliminary organization throughout the three states that is expected to assist materially in bringing in the desired unanimous Red Cross membership in every chapter community.

Following this preparation to secure the unanimous membership the actual Red Cross chapter organization will conduct the solicitation in the several communities represented by chapters, branches and auxiliaries.

Speakers, from overseas, both men and women, who have seen active service in either the army or American Red Cross, have volunteered to help "put it over" and will speak at both public and organization meetings when called upon.

With hearty co-operation from the heads of organized bodies, including churches, lodges, labor organizations, women's clubs and libraries, the Pacific division has received the names of working committees from representative communities in the three states. Such evidence of interest from groups of citizens is the best kind of encouragement to the ambition for an enrollment of every man and woman during the roll call period which ends November 11th, the first anniversary of Armistice Day.

Clean Up the Dust Germs Don't Toss Them About!

It's time to say good-bye to the broom and dustpan—they are out of place in this age of scientific cleanliness, when we know that dust germs are disease breeders.

Broom-sweeping swished them about, filling the air with them, blowing them from one part of the house to another, letting it settle somewhere else—sometimes in the food.

The electric suction cleaner cleans. It sucks up all the dirt and dust from the floor, rugs and carpets, collecting it in a bag, which you empty outside the house, and it cleans so thoroughly that there is no need of house-cleaning.

It is simplicity itself. You attach the cord to a lamp socket, and push the cleaner about, letting it eat up the dust. The cost of current is about the same as for your electric iron.

Your electric dealer has electric cleaners to demonstrate.

NEWS BREVITIES FROM SAN BRUNO

Mr. and Mrs. William Nerney of Fifth addition spent last Sunday visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hingston of Berkeley, who were former residents of San Bruno Park.

John Spinella and family left Wednesday to make their home across the bay.

Mrs. Joseph Taylor of San Mateo, sister of Mrs. Arthur Meehan, was a visitor here Tuesday.

Mrs. Marcel Daneri of San Francisco, formerly Miss Beatrice La Reaux of San Bruno, was visiting with her mother this week in First addition.

The trustees of the San Bruno M. E. church met at the home of Mrs. P. Bolliger in Fourth addition and arranged the work for the coming year. The new minister, the Rev. C. D. Winning, was present, and it is expected great things will be accomplished during his ministry here.

Mrs. Jack O'Connor, wife of the local station master, has returned from a week's visit with her mother, Mrs. H. Hickey, in Los Angeles.

Mrs. Belto Del Osso moved to San Francisco from her home in Belle Air Park Sunday, to be near the hair-dressing parlors which she has established in that city.

George Maissini of Belle Air Park, who has been ill for the past week with pleurisy and in care of Dr. F. H. Smith, is rapidly recovering and will soon be able to be about again.

Miss M. Regan left Friday for a two weeks' vacation in Grass Valley.

Mrs. George Clarke, who for several days has been confined to the house, is now able to attend to her duties in the candy store.

Mrs. J. Coughlan has gone to her ranch at Santa Cruz for a three days' stay.

The Gaiety Jazz Orchestra will give a dance Saturday evening, October 4th, at Green's Hall.

P. J. Sullivan, who is better at selling groceries than driving a machine, drove his Ford into a tree on the highway near Lomita Park. The car was somewhat damaged, but fortunately Mr. Sullivan escaped injury.

Mrs. Thomas Dunfield, former resident of Huntington Park, was visiting here this week. Mr. and Mrs. Dunfield have bought a ranch at Winters, Calif., and intend to raise fruit and poultry.

Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Russell spent Monday to Wednesday of this week visiting Mr. Russell's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Russell of Huntington Park.

Mrs. Manuel Pardo of San Bruno avenue gave birth to a fine baby girl Monday morning in St. Mary's Hospital, San Francisco. Mother and babe are doing well.

C. L. Jackson and family left Thursday morning for Los Angeles, where they intend to make their home in future.

J. Weisel is having his home on Sylvian avenue remodeled.

The parents of San Bruno are anxiously awaiting the outcome of a letter which will be presented to the city trustees at their next regular meeting by the secretary of the Parents-Teachers' Association. It asks that some one be stationed on the highway to look out for the children going to and from school.

Mrs. Walter Watson has returned to her home in Lomita Park, after enjoying a two months' visit with her mother, Mrs. Johnston, in Santa Rosa.

Otto Durr has the framework up for a beautiful six-room house on Santa Clara avenue, Lomita Park.

R. E. Manceau of Lomita Park and his brother-in-law, W. W. Ray, have opened a garage on the highway near Millbrae.

YEOMEN TO INSTALL OFFICERS.

The Yeomen will hold installation of officers next Tuesday evening. Officers of Burlingame and San Bruno will be inducted into their stations.

SAN BRUNO BANK IS INCORPORATED

Articles of incorporation of the California Bank of San Mateo county, organized to transact business in San Bruno, have been filed in the office of County Clerk Elizabeth M. Nash. The seven directors are Hardin Hatch, San Mateo; C. S. Crary, Burlingame; J. J. Bolioli, San Bruno; H. W. Regan, Burlingame; August J. Jenevein, San Bruno; P. J. Sullivan, San Bruno; B. B. Lockwood, San Mateo.

The capital stock is $200,000, divided into 2000 shares of a par value of $100 each, $25,000 of the stock having already been subscribed as follows:

Hardin Hatch, 132 shares, $13,200; C. S. Crary, 63 shares, $6,300; John J. Bolioli, 20 shares, $2,000; August J. Jenevein, 10 shares, $1,000; B. B. Lockwood, 5 shares, $500; H. W. Regan, 10 shares, $1,000.

DANCE BY JOLLY THREE PROVES A GREAT SUCCESS

The dance given by "The Jolly Three" last Saturday evening was very successful. Dancing continued till the wee sma' hours. Refreshments of coffee, cake, and "hot dogs" were served. The decorations of red and white streamers with cards of welcome and flags were much admired.

TO OBSERVE RALLY DAY.

Rally Day will be observed next Sunday at the Methodist church. There will be special exercises by the children of the Sunday school.

MANY ATTEND LODGE'S MONTHLY WHIST PARTY

The Yeomen gave their regular monthly whist party this week with a large attendance. The prizes won were as follows: Mrs. Fay, fern pot; C. Sarcander, set of plates; H. Schmidt, deck of cards and case; Wm. Fay, vase; Mrs. Alice Laumeister, butter dish; Mrs. Pete Kelly, cut glass vase; Mrs. H. Cook, flower bowl; Mrs. H. L. Heintz, pocketbook; W. Skellenger, box writing paper; Mrs. R. L. Jacobson, vase; P. J. Clark, silver pencil. Refreshments were served.

P.-T. ASSOCIATION PLANS ENTERTAINMENT FOR OCT. 25

The Parents-Teachers' Association held a committee meeting Wednesday afternoon at Green's Hall to make final arrangements for the coming entertainment to be given the evening of October 25th. Elaborate preparations are being made to make the entertainment a success and it is hoped the people of San Bruno will give the support the affair deserves, as the proceeds will be used in ways to benefit the school children.

Peter Wheelan from Mare Island was a visitor in San Bruno Friday. Peter intends to stay until Monday and see the sights.

Mr. and Mrs. Suparich of Belle Air Park are the proud parents of a fine baby boy which the stork delivered at their home Thursday evening.

LODGE GIVES PARTY FOR SERVICE MEN

The Woodmen gave a reception in Carpenters' Hall Thursday evening to their returned soldier members. The hall was beautifully decorated in green and the tables with dahlias donated by Mrs. F. H. Smith. Eight boys were expected, but four were unable to attend. Al Conradi, William Wedell, Paul Calagari and George Jenevein were the boys who attended. Mayor Louis Trager gave an address of welcome, which was much appreciated. Each of the boys gave a little talk and told of his experiences "over there." The supper was a very elaborate affair, as the Woodmen think nothing is too good for our boys who fought and did their bit.

The Profiteers.

"These profiteers," said Representative Esch of Wisconsin, "accuse themselves with their excuses. They remind me of little Willie. Little Willie came home the other day with a nice new golf ball. 'Look at the lost ball I found this afternoon, father,' he said. 'Are you sure, my boy,' the father asked, 'that it is the lost ball?' 'Oh, yes, sir,' said little Willie, 'I saw the owner and his caddy looking for it.'"—Exchange.

MR. AND MRS. STEARNS IN AUTO ACCIDENT AT REDWOOD

Mr. and Mrs. D. Stearns, daughter Dorothy, and Miss Myrtle James, all of this city, had a narrow escape from injury last Sunday when their auto skidded from the highway and tipped over in the ditch. The accident occurred near Redwood City. None of the occupants of the car were seriously injured, although Mrs. Stearns suffered a number of bruises. The cause of the accident, was the slipperiness of the pavement caused by the rain.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS TOLD IN BRIEF

People You Know as They Come and Go.

Mrs. R. T. Croker has returned from a three weeks' visit in Los Angeles.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Hynding left Thursday for an extended trip through the east.

Mr. James of Miller avenue returned Saturday from a business trip to Stockton.

H. C. Tuchen of Redwood City was in town Thursday making an appraisal of property in the estate of the late Mrs. Pick.

Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Nyland entertained E. L. Moses, Charles Baker, and Arthur Steele at dinner Saturday at their home on Miller avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. A. McSweeney entertained a number of their friends at their Grand avenue home Thursday evening. The evening was spent playing whist.

Mrs. F. S. Dolley and little daughter, Betsy, left to-day for a five weeks' trip to points in the east. Most of this time will be spent in visiting relatives in Maine.

Daniel Hyland left Monday for Quincy. Having purchased an interest in the Australian mine, he expects to remain in that part of the country during this winter.

Willard Sullivan, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Sullivan, took up his studies for the second year at Stanford University Wednesday. Mr. Sullivan is taking a course in chemical engineering.

I. S. Boyer, C. E. Schurk, Henry Veit, and Tom Allen visited Lodge No. 26, Loyal Order of Moose, in San Francisco Wednesday, being present at the initiation of 500 candidates, the largest class on record. The ceremonies were followed by a "feed."

Miss Norma Belli has taken the position of head nurse at the South San Francisco Hospital. Miss Belli is a graduate of St. Luke's Hospital in San Francisco. After her graduation she had charge of the Union Iron Works Hospital in the city. Later she went into the service of the Red Cross during the war.

RETURN FROM EXTENDED TRIP THROUGH THE EAST

Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Schurk returned Sunday night from an extended trip through the east, having visited Chicago, Bridgeport, Conn., New York City, Pittsburg, Philadelphia, Boston, and other cities. Mr. Schurk reports that he found business conditions good everywhere and money plentiful, although there was much labor unrest throughout the east and living was higher than in California. He tells of seeing "sugar lines" in New York City and of paying $1.80 a dozen for California oranges there. Mr. Schurk says South San Francisco looks better to him now than ever before.

JUDGE LETS THEM OFF EASY.

Judge Dowd has had five persons up before him this week on various charges of traffic law violations. Each culprit was fined $5 and told to mend his ways.

The gentleman burglar flashed his lamp in the startled eyes of the aroused head of the family.

"Where's your valuables?" he demanded, politely.

"For heaven's sake, don't shoot!" pleaded the victim. "My jewels are in that box on the bureau; my money is in the handbag on the dresser; my husband's watch—"

Impatiently shooting a hole in the pillow, the burglar snapped:

"Don't kid me! I asked you where you keep your butter and eggs!"

But with a shriek of desperation the woman leaped upon him, for that was too much, too utterly much!

DR. DOLLEY PLANS TRIP EAST TO STUDY LATEST IN SURGERY

Dr. F. S. Dolley of this city left today (Friday) for a business trip east. In Chicago Dr. Dolley will study the latest developments in industrial surgery at the large manufacturing plants. From there he will go to Pittsburg, where he will visit the surgical department of the United States Steel Corporation. He will also attend Mayo's clinic at Rochester, Minn., and the latter part of the month will be present at the Clinical Congress in New York City, where the latest methods in surgery, medicine, and obstetrics will be discussed and demonstrated.

Dr. Dolley expects to be away about a month or six weeks.

LOCAL BOY SCOUT OFFICIALS ATTEND BANQUET IN THE CITY

Rev. Daniel Stevens, scout master of the local Boy Scout troop; Robert Baldwin, assistant scout master, and Dr. J. C. McGovern, chairman of the local troop committee, attended a banquet for scout leaders given at the Commercial Club in San Francisco Monday night. The speaker of the evening was Raymond O. Hansen, scout executive for San Francisco, who told of what he had seen during a recent six months' tour of eastern centers, and gave an encouraging account of the Boy Scout movement in many places.
